

TO FIGHT WILSON'S BILL.

SENATOR ALDRICH OUTLINES THE REPUBLICAN POLICY.

He Says that the Democrats Must Permit Hearings Before the Committee on Finance.

(Copyright, 1894, by George Grantham Bain.)

Washington, Jan. 22.—Now that the tariff bill is about to be passed by the House and there is no doubt of its passage—interest centers in the Senate and particularly in the Finance Committee before which the bill will come for preliminary consideration. Both Democrats and Republicans in the House are anxious to know what the attitude of both parties in the Senate will be. Many Democrats who will vote for the bill in the House will vote for the bill in the Senate, committee to ask that modifications of certain schedules be made and the Republicans of the House will watch with interest the progress of the fight over the bill both in committee and out. There has never been any serious doubt that the Wilson bill in some form would pass the House. The expected battle-ground has always been the Senate.

When what is known as the McKinley bill was before the Senate in the form of a bill, the most active figure, both in committee and on the floor of the Senate, was Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island. He took the position of leader of the Republican "front" because he was the member of the Senate best informed on the tariff question. This fact is not disputed. He helped to shape the McKinley bill in the form in which it passed the Senate and also in the form in which it was finally agreed on in conference. It was quite as much an Aldrich bill as a McKinley bill. It is very natural therefore that those who are interested in the success or defeat of the Wilson bill should turn to Mr. Aldrich for information about the possibilities of its passing the Senate; and quite as natural that I should seek the senator from Rhode Island in quest of information on that point.

Mr. Aldrich is one of the most difficult men in public life to interview, not because he does not express himself freely and freely in conversation, but because he objects to giving his views for publication. It was after two weeks' pursuit of him between Washington and his home in Providence that I finally overtook him and had the opportunity to discuss with him the tariff outlook.

The senator declined to express an opinion for the Republican majority in the Senate. "In regard to some matters," he said, "I have no definite opinion." "Full hearings should be given by the Finance Committee to all parties interested in the tariff," he said. "The various provisions of the Wilson bill, as adopted by the House of Representatives, would have upon the industry in which they are engaged. Unless the Senate is engaged, follow the course it has usually adopted in the past and open its doors to hearings, no expression of opinion as to the merits of the bill will be possible from the Senate. The people vitally interested in the proposed radical change in existing law."

"The tariff question is essentially one of rates and the relation of rates. It is certainly not desirable that the committee should be obliged to listen to an academic discussion of theories, should seek the best attainable information as to the effect of this particular measure upon the welfare of the people and the revenue."

"Will not the questions which are now being sent out by the committee to manufacturers and others concerning the tariff question cover this point?" I asked.

"They will not," said the senator. "Those questions will undoubtedly elicit much valuable information of a general character, but they follow certain lines and do not refer to the bill which is now before the House, nor ask for an opinion as to its effect. The Senate and the country are entitled to know the character of this definite scheme and to have the opinions on this concrete question of those best qualified to give a judgment."

"How will it be possible to make distinctions between applicants for hearings for such applications will undoubtedly be without limit?"

"The committee should first hear the recognized representatives of industries and then go far as possible, give hearings to individuals. I do not, of course, mean by this that manufacturers alone should be heard, but farmers, labor organizations, workmen and importers should all have an equal chance to be heard. Those who could not be heard orally could file written or printed statements with the committee."

When asked what course will be followed in the committee in relation to amendments, the senator said: "The Democratic members of the committee will probably agree among themselves upon the measure in the form in which it will be referred to the Senate. That has been the custom of the committee."

"That is," I said, "whatever may be the differences of opinion among the Democratic members of the committee about certain features of the bill the agreement reached by the majority members among themselves will be the report of the committee."

"That will probably be the course of procedure. It has been, as I said, in the past. The Republican members of the committee will probably not seek to interfere with the majority in reaching their conclusions, as they have the responsibility for the measure reported."

"Will the Republican minority of the committee formulate a bill to represent its views?"

"I think not. I do not know what may happen in the future, but I see nothing in the present situation which would require such action on the part of the minority."

When asked what the course of Republican senators would be after the bill was reported to the Senate, the senator said: "The Democratic party are in full control of the legislative and executive branches of the government and are responsible for legislation. They were placed in control, as they claim, on account of their advocacy of a certain revenue policy. The Republican party was distinctly set forth in the Chicago platform, and while it is claimed there is a disposition to ignore this declaration of past policy, I believe that the representatives of the party have the right to furnish their own interpretation of party doctrine. They are entitled, without interference, to formulate their policy and put it into definite terms in a bill, that the people of the country may be able to judge of its wisdom and adaptability to their interests. Until it is known precisely what the terms of the bill will be as it passed the House, and until the administration and the opposition are developed and put into definite terms, it is impossible to say just what the attitude of the Republican senators will be or should be in regard to it. If the programme as finally adopted should happen to be that which has been stated, I believe that the Republican senators from apparently official sources, it will be safe to say that the Republican policy in the Senate will be one of persistent and determined opposition."

I asked the senator what would be the attitude of the Senate towards the consideration of the tariff question and the question of an income tax independent of each other.

"As the matter now stands," said the senator, "the House and the Senate have agreed to consider the tariff bill first. It is impossible to say just what the attitude of the Republican senators will be or should be in regard to it. If the programme as finally adopted should happen to be that which has been stated, I believe that the Republican senators from apparently official sources, it will be safe to say that the Republican policy in the Senate will be one of persistent and determined opposition."

When asked about the probable time to be taken in discussion in the Senate, Mr. Aldrich said: "There should be no intelligent discussion of the bill and the time will necessarily take considerable time. The administration proposes a radical change in the various provisions of the Wilson bill, as adopted by the House of Representatives, would have upon the industry in which they are engaged. Unless the Senate is engaged, follow the course it has usually adopted in the past and open its doors to hearings, no expression of opinion as to the merits of the bill will be possible from the Senate. The people vitally interested in the proposed radical change in existing law."

"Do you believe that there will be any attempt to cut short the debate on the bill?" I asked.

"I feel confident that there will be none," said Mr. Aldrich. "I believe that the Democratic majority will show the minority the same consideration that was shown them in the debate of 1890. They then believed that a tariff bill should not be fully considered in less than three months. While there was some difference of opinion as to the necessity for a discussion of such length, there was no serious opposition to giving the Democratic senators the time they asked. I think that the precedent of 1890 will be observed and that the Democrats will allow us all the time that is needed to consider the bill in detail."

"There will be no attempt by the Republicans to obstruct the passage of the bill?"

"No, I believe I can say that positively. If the majority give us the time necessary for discussing the bill, the minority will not object to the position on the part of Republican senators to delay its passage beyond the time thus required."

"Can the majority be agreed on when the bill is reported?"

"No, that would hardly be possible. The usual course is to allow the debate to continue until the committee has covered the question fully and then agree on a time for taking a vote. That was done in 1890. As I remember it, the president for a vote on that bill was reached only a few days before the vote was had."

"It would not be possible to pass a closure rule at this time as suggested by Senator Hill and others?"

"I think no attempt will be made in this direction," said the senator. GEORGE GRANTHAM BAIN.

NEWS FROM NEAR-BY.

FOUR GIRLS KILLED IN A SNOW-SLIDE IN IDAHO.

Seventeen Tramps Nearly Frozen to Death—The Auburn School House Burned—Nevada Cattle Shipments—Railway Search Lights.

Four girls were killed in the snow-slide which occurred on Wednesday of last week in the gulch putting into White Bird at Joe Jewell's. Two men with horses, says the Grangeville (Idaho) Free Press, from the prairie stopped there that night, and they slept in the girls' room up stairs, while the young ladies made a shakedown bed on the floor down stairs. The snowslide went through the side of the house, throwing the boards down on them as they slept, and all were either crushed or smothered. An infant child which lay between the two eldest girls was recovered alive. The old folks also slept down stairs, but escaped without injury, as did the guests. The name of the family was Thompson, formerly located at Cottonwood, the young ladies' ages ranged between 3 and 16. It is without doubt the most melancholy tragedy that has occurred in the country since the "Box" period war, and the bereaved family have the sympathy of all.

A School House Burned.

The Bear Lake Post says: "Some time last Monday night, between 11 and 12 o'clock, the district schoolhouse at Auburn, Star Valley, by some way as yet unknown, caught fire and burned to the ground. A large school furniture, consisting of desks, chairs, maps, etc., and a great many books belonging to the students, were also destroyed. The loss to the district is estimated at not less than $500. The school will probably be continued in the meeting-house until another schoolhouse can be erected."

Nevada Cattle Shipments.

During the shipping season of 1893, 220,000 head of cattle were sent to market outside the state and 57,000 head were delivered to Indian and military reservations at $30 per head in Montana. The aggregate value of the cattle shipped was $8,740,000. During the last three years, 650,000 head have been shipped from the state and 142,000 were consumed in the state. It is possible to suppose that the state would pass a bill that does not in itself provide sufficient revenue for carrying on the government economically.

Railway Search Lights.

The Southern Pacific is putting electric search lights on the engines up north, and the two huge engines running into Ashland, Oregon, are well equipped soon. These search lights are very powerful and long distance beams light darkness, being able to pierce a light for miles.

A Tough Experience.

A well known brakeman stated to a reporter of the Sun that he found seventeen tramps on Sherman hill, early yesterday morning, and that the poor fellows were nearly frozen to death. The wind was howling around the monument as though it came from the frozen Arctic fields. The conductor was obdurate and would not allow the men in the caboose where they could get warm. The brakeman was forced to smuggle the poor devils into a box car and they came into Cheyenne, a lot of them so nearly frozen that they could hardly talk when they arrived here. No person, no matter how warmly clad, has any fancy for lying out on Sherman hill a night like Monday night was. It was cold enough to paralyze the efforts of the head of the household, who was compelled to get up in the morning and build the fire—Cheyenne Sun.

Snow in California.

The snowfall in Truckee this far for the present month is five feet, or seven feet seven inches for the winter. The Republican says up to the present time last winter there was only four inches had fallen. During the hard winter of 1889-90 something over thirty-six feet of snow fell and seventeen inches of rain.

IN POLICE CIRCLES.

A QUIET DAY IN JUDGE SMITH'S COURT.

Thomas Brodie, Charged with Violating the Sewer Ordinance, Is Found Not Guilty—Other Cases Disposed Of.

Yesterday was a comparatively quiet day in police circles, there being but three arrests made up to 6 o'clock last night. Police Justice Smith had thirteen alleged offenders before him but the prosecution secured a single conviction only. Six of the cases being continued until Monday.

Thomas Brodie, charged with violating the sewer ordinance by making connections and repairs without a license, was given a hearing and found not guilty. He was discharged.

Richard Arahill, alias Darlow, the fellow who was found guilty of disturbing the peace by abusing Captain Donovan and making a fight when being searched at the police station, was again before the court, but this time in a very different condition of mind. With great humility he asked the pardon of the court and of Captain Donovan for the offense and admitted the wrong, pleading an excessive amount of whisky aboard as an excuse. Upon the recommendation of the captain sentence was suspended.

Late Friday night the proprietor of the Nevada house complained at headquarters that W. H. Patton, a horseman, which has been boarding and lodging with him since December 23 and was in arrears some $40. Not having enough money with which to liquidate and being out of work, Patton purchased a scalper's ticket for Missouri, and intended to leave for the east yesterday morning. He was arrested, however, on the charge of obtaining board under false pretenses and the morning session of the court was arraigned. The hotel man was adverse to criminal prosecution and stated that it was the money he wanted, not his debtor's liberty. Patton was given his ticket and discharged.

John Staley, V. Kellis and Andrew Poulson, three men who took up and carried off a West Side Rapid Transit crossing, were arraigned on the charge of grand larceny and entered a plea of not guilty. The cases were set for hearing for Monday afternoon, meanwhile the defendants are at liberty on their own recognizance.

The charge of petty larceny preferred against E. Christensen, John Ringer and James Goodwin, the boys who picked up a number of tools in the Rio Grande Western yards, will be investigated on Monday afternoon. Thomas E. Jacobs forfeited $5 for being drunk.

Two alleged vagrants were found not guilty and discharged.

ALLEGED BURGLARS.

Charged with Going Through Dr. Smith's Office Recently.

Fred Albert, an Italian aged 19, and Elias Thomas were arrested yesterday afternoon by Detectives Sheets and Rhodes on the charge of burglary. They ornamented the inside of a cell at the city jail last night.

These are the fellows who are charged with the burglary of Dr. Smith's office. The stolen instruments were recovered several days ago by Sheets from a second-hand dealer to whom they had been sold. The robbery was committed two weeks ago. It is said to be a sure case against both men and it is more than likely that Albert will tell a straight story to the judge on Monday. He said yesterday that he and Thomas robbed the office and had another fellow sell the goods. The "kid" would have made another visit to the office alone but when he neared the place he saw Thomas talking to a policeman and telling a fairy story about being held up.

GROWTH OF SUICIDE IN FRANCE.

Over 8,000 People Took Their Own Lives in 1890.

The topic of suicide has always possessed a fascination for the worker in vital statistics, and the subject itself is extremely interesting from points of view connected with its prevalence, its methods, and its relations to natural property or the reverse in different countries, says a London writer.

One of the latest declarations on suicide, which has been discussed and been published in the Journal Officiel and has reference to the increase of self-destruction in France. Dealing with the figures for the year 1890 it is reported that no fewer than 6,576 males and 1,834 females committed suicide across the channel—a total of 8,410.

The report takes account of the last thirty years and shows an increasing prevalence of suicide in France. Thus, from 1861 to 1885 the number was 4,691, 42,127 per 100,000 inhabitants; from 1886-90, 4,999 were reported, a proportion of 13 to the 100,000; from 1871-75 there were 5,276 cases, or a proportion of 13.5 to the 100,000.

From 1881-85 there were 7,339 cases, a proportion of 19, and from 1886-90 8,226, or a proportion of 21 to the 100,000. Are these records due to an increase of the neurotic temperament? Or, to put the matter more broadly, is there anything about the inevitable result of the high pitch of modern civilization, with all its excitement, brain fag, brain worry, and, let us add, with an increased struggle for existence, a greater hardness of life at large to the many, and a more settled conviction of despair? I do not pretend to answer these questions.

The pity of it is that anybody should find life not worth living, or should fail to find anything that might make him or her better before seeking relief in the silence of the eternal.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

To Laundry Customers—By the Salt Lake Laundrymen.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Jan. 18, 1894. Owing to the unsettled condition of business and because of our inability to make collections, also the fact that all laundry help as well as supplies we are compelled to pay in cash, is hereby an absolute necessity to adopt a STRICTLY CASH SYSTEM.

It is well to note that the help employed by the laundrymen of Salt Lake City amounts in the aggregate to several hundred women and girls. These employees depend on their weekly salaries for their support, and in many cases are the sole maintenance of entire families. In view of these facts we sincerely trust that our numerous patrons appreciate the situation, especially those who have had monthly accounts heretofore, and that all will only cheerfully concur in this cash rule, but aids with their patronage to continue employing this large force of dependent people.

Therefore, in keeping with the above, on and after January 23, 1894, no laundry will be delivered except on payment of cash for the same.

This rule applies to all persons without distinction or favor.

ARE YOU A WOMAN? PLEASE READ REFERENCES AT THE END OF THIS ADVERTISEMENT.

We do not often advertise, but hundreds of women who owe their recovery to "VIAVI" have urged that its curative properties be made known in this manner, as many sufferers might not be reached otherwise.

Our advertising has mainly been done by our grateful patients. Talented ladies, whom "VIAVI" has cured, have been delivering lectures about it in the large cities to their friends. Every woman using it has joyfully told her friends what a boon it is to "Eve's daughters." Thus, by personal statement, its fame has been spread, and quiet as the means employed were, in a few years has traveled to remote lands. Orders come from all quarters of the earth.

WHAT DOES "V-I-A-V-I" MEAN?

The word is from Latin derivatives, and means "the way to health." The remedy is compounded by a secret process, and for the purpose of keeping its process secret, the company patented its trade mark, but it is NOT a patent medicine. "VIAVI" is a combination of the properties of certain plants. In it are none of the drastic minerals too commonly employed in treating women.

"VIAVI" FOR WOMEN IS THE QUEEN OF REMEDIES.

That Cleopatra was beautiful is doubted. Magnetic women of all times have been quite plain. Their abundance of health enabled them to captivate men whom ere prettiness of face could never hold in chains.

Beauty's net catches many, but it HOLDS a very few. It is only natural that an afflicted woman should in time lose her husband's love. Desirous as she may be of treating her tenderly, his affection is captured, sooner or later, by some possessor of health and lively spirit.

"VIAVI" would go to the root of that poor woman's trouble and remove the CAUSE thereof. Not only is her bodily health improved, but her home again becomes the domain of warm affection.

WIVES OF UTAH, there is food for serious reflection in the last few lines above. Dr. Cowan says: "Probably not one woman in a thousand enjoys perfect health." About 90 per cent. of women suffer with SOME form of these diseases. Modern life has helped their progress, and there was no successful coping with them until "VIAVI" was discovered. Many mature women hesitate to consult physicians in these diseases, because they feel that it is so embarrassing. "VIAVI" besides being effective, is a HOME treatment. Exposure and examination is thus avoided, and the expense is but a small part of what it would be by other methods of treatment.

IT IS WHOLLY AN ABSORPTION TREATMENT.

In form of CAPSULES and CERATE. The capsule is applied directly to the diseased or weakened parts, and is absorbed by the uterus, which has stronger absorbing power than any other organ of the female system. In a few hours the whole body is permeated with its ingredients. It is borne along with the blood, stimulating the circulation and throwing off superfluous matter. It is not a speedy cure; but it is a thorough and certain cure. Neither is it a miraculous compound. It simply assists the great healer, Nature, and it helps EVERY part of the body. Through it, women regain strength. Brightness of eye and clearness of complexion return to them.

DO YOU WANT HEALTHY CHILDREN.

We wish right here to answer a question that has been asked many a time since we opened the offices in Salt Lake. "Is VIAVI a preventive of motherhood?" No, indeed. Instead of combating Nature, "VIAVI" assists pregnancy and is responsible for the music of children's laughter in more than one home in Utah. In these cases it has come as a blessing, for through it sterility was overcome, and the heart's desire gratified. Pictures of some "VIAVI" babies, born in Utah, may be seen in the manager's office in this city. A child's first right

IS TO BE WELL BORN, OF PARENTS SOUND IN BODY AND MIND.

If the thought, the money, the religious education, the race were wisely directed to the generation of our descendants, to the condition of our environment, to the health of children, the whole face of society might be changed before we celebrate the next centennial of our National birth. All religious, educational, benevolent and industrial societies, combined and working harmoniously together, cannot do as much in a life-time of effort toward the elevation of mankind as can parents in the nine months of pre-natal life. If there is a class of educators who need SPECIAL preparation, it is those who have high calling. It is those who assume the responsibility of parents.

DOES THIS APPLY TO YOU?

In the last few years thousands of cases of inflammation of the uterine organs have been cured by "VIAVI." It is used for derangements of the menstrual functions, for enlargement and malposition of the uterus—such as tipping backward and forward—or protraction of the organ. Its remarkable results are constantly being proved. Many tumors are cured by its use. A woman passing through that critical period known as the "change of life" has need for a remedy to invigorate and strengthen her. "VIAVI" does this, and at the same time soothes the delicate organs, which are undergoing a transformation. The Cerate is found an excellent remedial agent in cases of paralysis, rheumatism and nervous diseases.

ARE YOU A NERVOUS MOTHER?

Vitality quickens love, and if a woman's vital force is consumed by suffering, the children, as well as the husband, cannot receive that affection which is their due. These derangements invariably react on the fine nerves of women, and though we read in books of sick "angels," we meet few women of such angelic mold that they can suffer and yet smile sweetly with lips, back and brain are pierced with pain.

"VIAVI" is a help to ALL; for every member of the family, and every friend is gratified by the change it works.

THE HAND THAT ROCKS THE CRADLE IS THE HAND THAT ROCKS THE WORLD.

A woman who has passed through the ordeal of an inexperienced wifehood and motherhood, should certainly endeavor to so direct her daughters' minds that they may avoid the pitfalls which embitter her own life; but mothers have been strangely silent on these subjects. Some even consider it indecent to talk with their daughters of these matters and allow them to drift along without guidance. It is not indecent to prepare a girl intelligently for a sphere she was created to adorn. The Holy Mother has endeavored to teach motherhood, and it is a crown that makes a queen of any woman who rightly wears it. If a woman has good health, she should guard it jealously.

HUSBANDS, LISTEN.

The improvement of your wife's health removes care from your mind, and enables you to win greater success in business. Many a commercial failure has been due to a sickly wife. All the money the husband made was spent in medicine and attendance for her. After years of this, and she grew no better, he became discouraged and ceased trying to get ahead.

With "VIAVI" THERE IS HOPE.

Investigate it and see that your wife gives it a fair trial. A poor man's sole cause of happiness is often a cheerful, healthy wife and their babies. She may not be accomplished in social arts, but she has warm arms to enfold him. Men are governed by the same human longing, whatever their various ranks may be, and the hearthstones of a millionaire is made brighter if a wife be there who is NATURALLY prompted to the display of sweet emotion.

TRUTH MUST PREVAIL.
